AeroChapters provide youth with the opportunity to learn about and explore the many facets of the aviation and aerospace industry. Youth members develop their leadership skills and explore aerospace industry disciplines that include science, technology, engineering and math, collectively known as STEM.

The primary objectives of AeroChapters are:

1. Introduce aviation and aerospace to the youth of America through monthly activities.
2. Educate youth about and promote career opportunities in the aviation and aerospace industry.
3. Provide an opportunity for youth to develop leadership skills by leading their local chapters.
4. Teach youth about the steps to becoming a pilot.
5. Explore with youth the various STEM elements that help define aviation and aerospace.
6. Provide a pathway for youth to participate in other FSANA programs.

Chapter members create the programs that will be covered on a monthly basis. Chapter members are required to be youth members of FSANA which offers additional benefits. The FSANA youth membership is $25.00 annually. The youth member application is located on the FSANA website: www.fsana.com.
